LONDON Dec. 29.—The Times to-day in the leading article says "the announcement that the Sultan has invited her Majesty's Government to approach the Czar with a view of bringing about negotiations for peace will tend to calm some of the fears which have been exciting the country and to hold out the hope that a dreadful war may be brought to a close more quickly than by the to a close more quickly than by the shock of battle. The Sultan has taken shock of battle. The Sultan has taken the only course consistent with a calm review of what the war has already done and what it must do if it should last much longer. The circular to the Powers showed that the peace party at the Porte had for a time got the upperhand. It proposed terms which would no doubt have been inadmissible even before the war and which would not bear discussions. war and which would not bear discussion after the terrible battles of the last six months, but the Porte did not last six months, but the Porte did not intend the circular to be taken as its last word. Now that all the powers have courteously but firmly declined to approach Russia with impossible conditions, the Sultan has wisely asked this about negotiations for peace. It is important that the government should conduct the negotiations in a spirit absolutely free from partisanship. We As mediators our essential duty is to convey a message from one power with which we have no quarrel, to another power with which we have no quarrel. We have great interests at stake, political as well as commercial, and they will be urged at the proper moment, but meanwhile it is our duty to act as a friendly intermediary and not as rulers of the Indian empire. To take a side with one of the two powers which we must bring into contact would simply be to make our mission useless and destroy the prospect of peace. Our government will have to ascertain whether Russia is willing to open negotiations and what are her conditions of peace. It will then have to offer Turkey such advice as may seem proper and to present her answer. It may and to present her answer. It may have to reason in an earnest spirit with both belligerents in order to secure a common ground, it may be obliged to urge the Porte on the one hand to be wise in time, and Russia on the other not to demand such terms as would good the Turks to desperate courses and thus multiply the perils of Europe. While a mediator may seem to act as the advocate now of one power and now of another, the arguments must be dictated purely by a spirit of concil-iation. No doubt the government would have to consider the interests of England, but the presentation of them would come in good time and there is not the slightest reason to fear they will be

The vote in Florida, he said, was just as fairly cast for Hayes as was that of Massachusetts, only by a smaller majority. It was well known, he said, that he was a res-ident in Florida at the time, and knows whereof he speaks. Referring to other suggestions thrown out that he was keeping a good deal in reserve, he said, "I do not suppose for a moment that I have exhausted all the information I may have acquired in the course of a life time in this letter, but I have put forward so far as I thought necessary, the whole truth in the matter referred to, at least all that was called for by the occasion.

Mr. Hopper Boggs has been doing things which he ought not to have done, for some time. Since he left his native Marviand he has swindled upon a scale of eat magnificence from Maine to Ge gia, and from the Atlantic to the Pa sic coast. Who cultivates and inspires her luxurious tastes and proclivities? Who deous tastes and proclivities? Who demands, inexorably, that she shall be not only naturally levely, but insists that she be improved by the gentle processes of a generous astheticism? Of course nobody under the overspreading heavens but man. "N" aurez jamais l'air d'un bourgeois," is the male injunction, and woman dresses because men demand that she shall be dressed, and cressed well, from the dainty leather dressed well, from the dainty leather which embraces her pretty little feet (she must always have pretty little feet, (she must always have pretty little feet, if she has to pinch and bruise them), to the rose which nestles in the perfumed ceuch of her hair. Do not blame woman then for rushing into every extravagance of dress. She has a natural penchant for outward adornment, and us be generous and spare woman any unjust reproaches. It has often been said that female life and character are sure indications of the domestic condition of a people. It is even charged nowadays that all women are flighty, extravagant, im-practical, busybodies; that they become burdens and sorrows in the married state. That is true to a somewhat alarming extent, but we have faith to believe that the women who are the salt of the earth are more numerous than people think. There is, to-day as always, a disposition to describe the personal charms of women, rather than their gifts of mind and heart. Hence the absorbing ambition of mere society girls to starve their minds and diligently cultivate the person. The man who probably had the hardest contest with this feminine proclivity was St. Chrysostom, the great Christian preacher of the fourth century. Constantinople was at that period the most luxurious capital on the face of the earth. It was the fashion for all the women ef society to paint their faces and dye their eyes with stibium, and Chrysostom's remonstrances are faces and dye their eyes with stibium, and Chrysostom's remonstrances are sometimes amusing. A Word With the South. The New York World undertakes dvise the South in an article bearing the above heading, which we present below, for what it is worth, with the single comment, however, that its evident purpose is to frighten the South away from its alliance with the West on the silver question. The World

The letter which Mr. William E Chandler has addressed to New Hampshire Republicans, odious and ridiculous as it is on the surface, contains a serious warning which Southern men, and especially the influential men of Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina, will do well to heed. The writer of it on the side of the Constitution, and to is one of the most active, most inven- remember that the one man in the Senoften saved his party in a dangerous crisis. He is careful and cautious, so vice is Senator Bayard. that when he publicly points out the path which his party ought to tread i is quite certain that the portion with which he is in sympathy, and which is the only live portion left of his party, has already decided to move in the direction indicated. Whither is that party, now under the new lead of Edmunds, Hoar, Conkling and Wadleigh South!" Mr. Chandler distinctly declares. What is to be the particular line of march, how recruits are to be induced to join and what particular bounties are to be held out to invite new enlistments are things not yet disclosed. But that in some way the nagro race is to be used again as an element of national disorder and of Republican intrigue in the Southern States is plain enough. It also seems reasonably plain that Mr. Hayes is to the Republican party just as Andrew Johnson was. With Johnson, in 1865, the effort of those with whom Chandler then acted was to drive the President either to put himself at the head we see the same Chandler attempting the same thing in 1877 with Hayes, and for similar reasons. Will the result be It will be remembered that on the 12th of December, 1865, Senator Cowan, of Pennsylvania, introduced into the Senate a resolution asking President Johnson to report respecting the condition of the States lately in rebellion. Sumner resisted the resolution until an amendment was adopted calling for any reports on the files of the War Office, made by the Hon. John Covode and General Schurz. Seven days thereafter President Johnson sent to the Senate a message with a memorable document signed by General Grant and dated December 18, 1865, which, when it was read in the Senate, Sumner denounced as a "whitewashing" document like that "of Franklin Pierce with regard to the enormities in Kansas." The report of Grant indorsed everything that conservative men North or South believed about the condition of the rebellious States. He distinctly declared that if the citizens of the South were not "humiliated" they would "return to self-government within the

of an impossible third party or to go with the Democratic hosts. And now

Union" with alacrity, fidelity and joy. This opinion of Grant is worthy of careful reperusal to-day, for if its recommendations had been adopted in Washington this country would not be in the distressing condition in which it that, if he will but elevate the bloody now is. But the Republicans of 1865 shirt once more, send troops to the would not follow Grant, and so after a Southern States, abanden his civil serlittle time Grant surrendered to them in consideration of the Republican nomination for the Presidency. Though abandoned by himself, the ideas and declared in December, 1865, and for under charges of impeachment, and under the advocacy of Mr. Evarts was acquitted. When Grant ascended to power in 1868 intrigues were set afoot with the object of lashing the Southern negroes into acts of hostility to the white men and of crime agains the laws. Mr. Evarts and all who had defended Johnson were repudiated. Every department of the Government was employed to fill the South with carpet-bagging Federal officials, instructed in the work of promoting hostility between the races. On that hostility the Republican party lived and waxed fat from 1868 to 1874. Then the shrinkage and decay began with the election of a Democratic House in Washington, and the collapse of the old Republican system was completed by the popular election of Mr Tilden in 1876. At this point Chandler begins his new story. He recites how, in order to induce him to go to Florida and of Hancock county, in reference to the der to induce him to go to Florida and death rate of the colored people of others to go to Louisiana, Mr. Hayes promised to display "the bloody shirt" if put into the White House; how on this pledge the Electoral Commission ratio altogether disproportionate to the facts: "Mr. Dickson, who wished to test this matter for himself, had an enuhow, to prevent a final failure of all this combined deviltry through the action of the House, there was a new promise made respecting the South by the friends of Hayes, which the President has thus far apparently struggled to keep. Chandler now declares that the Republican party must straightway repudiate Mr. Hayes or compose its in-

This is his ulti-"The Republican party has lived long and survived many assaults and many treasons only because it had been a party founded upon high principles, animated by lofty sentiment, courage-ously acting up to neble convictions. If it now disgraces its record, and in-dorses or fails to repudiate the Hayes surrender, its votes will leave it by thousands, its days be numbered; it will die a deserved and unhonored

> Let the Southern people carefully ponder this record of what Grant said of them in 1865, and compare it with what he did to them after 1868, and after the Radical Northern leaders had cracked their whip about his ears ! The same whip is now cracking all along the Republican team, and the South, if it desires to be wise in time, will do well to look about for safe alliances. If it is careful, steady and patriotic in action it can now protect itself, as from 1868 to 1877 it could not do. If, however, it intrigues or palters now with Conk ling or Edmunds or Hoar, its rightbower and sheet-anchor in the East and West are lost and gone. What the South now needs most of all is to rally the conservative opinion of the Middle and Northeastern States on its side and the great topics of public peace, public faith and the reform of the public ser

Much is being said and written just now about the true remedies for existing evils. It is not out of place to recall Mr. Tilden's words on this subject He said the remedies for the evils now felt by the people in their business and industries must extend beyond any in the Senate, marching? "Upon the measures merely relating to the currency. They must be broader and deeper. They must begin with a prompt and large reduction in governmental expenditures and taxation, which shall leave in the hands that earn it a larger share of the result of labor. They must proceed by withdrawing, as much as possible, governmental interferences that cripple the industries of the people. They must be consummated with an increased efficiency and economy in the conduct of business and in the processes be treated by the brain and muscle of of production, and by a more rigorous frugality in private consumption. A period of self-denial will replace what has been wasted. We must build up a new prosperity upon the old foundations of American self-government; carry back our political systems towards the ideals of their authors; make governmental institutions simple, frugal-meddling little with the private concerns of individuals -aiming at fraternity among ourselves and peace abroad-and trusting to the people to work out their own prosperity and happiness. All the elements of national growth and private felicity exist in our country in an abundance which Providence has vouchsafed to no other people. What we need to do is to rescue them from governmental folly and rapacity.

Gov. HOLLIDAY will be inaugurated on the first day of January. He goes into office in the midst of the public debt discussion. Upon that subject he is quoted as saying: "As to the State debt, I am opposed to repudiation, I would not have such a stigma cast upon my State any more than I would upon my private fame. But while I am thus opposed to repudiation, for the same general reason I am in favor of some speedy settlement of the debt, honorable to our State and satisfactory to the creditors."

THE Philadelphia Evening Chronicle says the Implacables will hail with fiendish delight the statement of William Ellery Chandler, and will gloat over the shame that it pours out upon the head of the President; but, for all vice policy and kick Evarts, Schurz and Key out of the Cabinet, he will be welcomed back to the fold with the loud-

Senator Edmunds is searching for health along the coast of North Caroli-na. He travelled by way of the Dismal Swamp Canal. They have formed an anti-profanity society in a Vermont town, and the penalty for breaking the pledge is the task of wheeling one of the members Mr. Grant has gained thirty-five pounds in weight since he left New York, and is letting his beard grow.

He sleeps late he says, enjoy his first real rest for twenty-five years. Senator DcDonald, in a speech at Indianapolis last week, predicted the passage of the silver bill, if necessary, over the veto of the President, and the repeal of the resumption act, with mod-

It is related of Col. Ingersoll that, being sharply asked if he could mention one law of nature that in his puny wis-dom he could change for the better, he affably replied: "Yes; I would make health catching, instead of disease."

N. Y. Tribune (Rep.): If the Solid South wishes to explode the charge of repudiation, it must not vote nearly solid for unlimited silver and all attempt to repeal the Resumption Act. It must not hang out the black flag if it doesn't wish to be called a pirate.

It is a rather serious piece of business out in Denver for a theatrical company to offend an audience. The other night the Forester combination attemption attemption of the property of the combination attemption of the property of the pro ted to play the "Shaughraun" in that fair town, and the egg-harvest was something awful to contemplate.

The expenses of Stanley's great African journeys, just concluded, have been about $115,000, borne equally by the New York Herald and London Telegraph; more than any previous African expedition, private or governmental, and giving, for that matter, more com-plete and important results than any

It is stated that annually, for the last decade, there has been paid to the Brit-ish government by the Bank of England a sum slightly in excess of $17,500,-000, representing the unclaimed dividends on consols. In other words. $580, 000,000 of the English national debt will never have to be redeemed, which is certainly something rather surprising.

The interesting fact was learned in New York, Wednesday, from a trustworthy source, that a prominent Western city in which silver advocates are numerous, sent to New York to borrow one million dollars in currency for twelve months to meet accrusing taxes. The people addressed replied that pending the silver bill discussion they were not loaning currency, but would lend the desired amount in gold at 6 per

A Philadelphia gentleman writes to the New York Tribune that he is willing to contribute $50 toward the expense o circulating the speeches of Gen. Garfield and Senator Bayard. He adds: "The silver craze is so perfect a hallucination that it is easy to understand why the interests threatened should regard it rather as a subject for curious investigation than as a real and pressing danger. It had seemed too monstrous ever to become a reality, but it is precisely this supine over confidence which will ena-ble Senator Jones and his confederates to make their little game."

Sound Reasons for Faith. The American people are shrewd and of servant. They are not often deceived beam pretensions; but when they are, the soon discover their error. If Hostetter's tomach Bitters had been a sham, they wouldong since have discarded it; but finding that there was not a claim put forth in its behalthat its curative properties did not justify they immediately gave it the preference to every article of its class. Time has onl served to strengthen their faith, and has increased its popularity to an extent almos beyond parallel, even in this age of successful proprietary medicines. It ranks for most among the standard preparations of the day, and is endorsed by the medical frater nity and the newspaper press. It overcome and prevents fever and ague and other malarial disorders with wonderous certainty tones the system, banishes dyspepsia, remedies constipation and liver complaint, relieves gout, rheumatism, and affections of the bladder and kidneys.
